PRICES IN LAWRENCE CO.

Scale of Charges Fixed in That Community By Physicians and Reported by the Bedford Mail.

HIGH PRICES FOR HARD JOBS

The doctors of Lawrence County, according to the Bedford Mail, met and adopted the following scale of prices to be in force in that county from this time onward:

Visit in the city if pay is good $2.00. Visit in the country on pike $1.00 per mile extra. Produce, poultry, quilts or socks accepted in payment. Operation for Liveritis a la Abe Martin $50.00. Opening gum boil, $1.00. Pulling teeth, each, 50 cents. For bleeding the patient in the "nachal way," $3.00. For pulling the patient's leg $5.00 to $10.00. Operation on normal appendix, $100.00. Operation on diseased, same price. Operation for appendicitis when appendix has already been removed, $150. For attending all injuries due to being run over by automobiles, 50 cents added. Treatment of automania, $50 to $100. Treatment of auto-intoxication same price. For straightening automobile face, $50 to $100. When expensive medicine like Karagon Compound and

Malena salve are furnished extra charge shall be made. For laying on of hands, $2.00 to $5.00. For mental suggestion causing the patient to believe he owes you as much as you tell him he does, you get it all. When osteopathic treatment is desired, 50 for rubbing down, for rubbing up 75 cents. Cases of brain storm and Denetia Americana will not be accepted, but will be referred to the Academy of Medicine. In cases of poor patients unable to pay for expensive medicines, Christian Science methods will be used at a normal price. Keeley cure, before Local Option election, $15. (Note: That cure will be discontinued after that date.) For grafting on legs and arms and things, $200 to $500. For operation for Aortic Regurgitation $1000.

The minority report as presented was defeated by a small marginal vote. The majority report increasing the fees in some cases and adding new ones to the schedule was adopted.

LOCAL OPTION ELECTION

Will be Held in Lawrence County On January Fifth Next.

PETITION CONTAINS 2500 NAMES

The petitions for a local option election being circulated in all the townships of Lawrence County are being numerous signed and will be ready to be presented to the Board of Commissioners next Monday. It is said that the petitions will contain in excess of 2500 names, 1446 being the requisite number, or 20 per cent of the total vote cast at the last general election. In Marion township it is said that the petition contains 800 names and in Perry, Marshall, Pleasant Run and Flinn few persons have declined to affix their signature to the document. In the city of Bedford it is estimated that a majority of the voters will or have signed the petition. The commissioners will be asked to call the election for Tuesday, January 5, on which date the people will be given an opportunity of voting "wet" or "dry."—Bedford Mail.

A CASE OF SCARLET FEVER

Miss Sadie O'Neil of Coatesville Who is Here to Attend DePauw, is Quarantined at the Home of Mrs. DeMotte—It is Believed That She Contracted the Disease in Coatesville.

THE CASE IS A SEVERE ONE

Miss Sadie O'Neil of Coatesville, who is here to attend DePauw, is ill of scarlet fever at the home of Mrs. J. B. DeMotte on Spring Avenue, where the young lady rooms. Dr. Zaring is the attending physician.

Dr. Sudranski, the city health officer, was notified of the case and placed the house under quarantine this morning. Miss O'Neil, it is believed by the physicians, contracted the disease in Coatesville, where she recently had been on a visit. The case is a severe one. Precautions to prevent a spread of the disease will be taken.

SCARED BY DRUNKEN MAN

A drunken man wandering around in the neighborhood of the Commercial Hotel at near 5:30 o'clock last evening caused several scares. The man, a stranger, went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Vermilion and knocked. Little Hazel Vermilion answered the knock and the man asked if he could "come in." The little girl thought he asked for Sally Hayden, maid at the house, and went to the rear of the house to get her.

When they returned the stranger had walked in and was seated in the parlor. Mrs. Charley Hoagland, who was at the Vermilion home at the time, and Hazel, went to the home of Robert Graham, across the street and got Mr. Graham to put the man out of the house. The fellow badly scared Mrs. Hoagland and little Hazel Vermilion, but otherwise seemed harmless. He also attempted to enter other homes.

If you don't get one of those fine pictures displayed in the show window of Hanna's furniture store, it will be your fault, four of them will be given away Saturday night at the opera house moving picture show.

The Model Clothing store was the first to decorate for Christmas, and the long festoons of holly draped over the show windows and entrance have been much admired today.

The Church and Faith Healing.

The above theme will be the subject of the next sermon in the series which Dr. Hoagland is presenting in College Avenue Church. The first in the series was, "The Fact of Faith Healing." The second was, "The Christian's Attitude towards Faith Healing." The third will be, "The Church and Faith Healing," followed by "The Faith That Heals." The concluding sermons in the series will be, "Christian Science and Mind cure," and "Medicine and Religion or the Minister, the Physician and the Sick." Many expressions of deep interest in these sermons have been received. It is not promised that these sermons will be given consecutively, but from time to time as they can be prepared. It is expected that next Sunday evening Dr. Hoagland will speak on the "Church and Faith Healing."

THE INDIANA STATE CRANSE

Will Hold Its Annual Meeting at Winona Lake Next Week.

The Thirty-eighth session of the Indiana State Grange will be held at Winona Lake, December 8, 9 and 10, 1908. It is believed it will be the largest and best meeting of the Grange ever held in the state.

Measures of great moment, not only to the order, but to the farmers and the entire people of the country, will be considered and discussed. The president of the United States has appointed a commission to inquire into and investigate what changes in the tariff laws of the country should be made to promote the best interest of the people of the entire country. This commission is now holding daily hearings at the City of Washington, D. C., listening to the arguments of the attorneys and the representatives of the varied industrial interests of the country.

IN HONOR OF ANNIVERSARY

The Penelope Club spent the afternoon yesterday with Mrs. George Conklin in honor of her first wedding anniversary. After a social time the president presented Mrs. Conklin with a beautiful hand-painted plate in the name of the club. Mrs. Conklin was too surprised to speak for a few moments. Then she thanked them in a few words saying she would place it with her choicest possessions. After refreshments were served a guessing contest was held. Small candy hearts were placed in a china slipper and the winner or nearest guess was given a handsome picture in beautiful frame. It was won by Mrs. George Davidson, a guest. The number was 69 and she guessed 75. The bunch called at night and all had a pleasant time. The house was decorated in red and white hearts, also read shades on the electric lights. The favors were red hearts with 1907-1908, December 3, tied with green ribbon—the club colors. The dining room table had on a crepe paper lunch set in violets.

Do you want the reward of twenty dollars offered in this paper. It is possible for you to get it. See the advertisement in another column.

SNOW, BEAUTIFUL SNOW

A Large Assortment of Fair Quality Was Received in Greencastle Today And is Still Present, Though Showing Signs of Wear.

BAD FOR FEET, GOOD FOR WHEAT

Greencastle and vicinity awakened this morning and looked out upon real winter weather. There was a large consignment and varied assortment of snow, and the amount was constantly increasing all day. Many people were glad to see the snow. Farmers declared that it would be good for wheat. Store keepers were sure that it would mean increased trade. Small boys and girls felt that it meant the close approach of Christmas. And larger boys found the beautiful in just the right condition for snow balls, and mimic war has raged all day. Many a man who has been compelled "to tip or take it," has not felt the charm of the snow fall, however, and has gone his way with a sore spot in his heart, and perhaps on his head.

The play grounds at the various school houses this afternoon looked like a park in some German city. The ground was covered with statuary in various stages of completion and color. Many artists worked diligently to give form and figure to snow men, and dreams of architecture, and often with considerable success.

Practical people are hoping that a rain will follow the snow so that the streams may fill and water become plenty again in places that for some time have known it not.

CLOVERDALE CAR BONDS

Report From Martinsville That They Have Been Sold and That Work is To Begin at Once.

SURVEYORS WORKING ON LINE

It is rumored that the bonds for the construction of the Interurban line connecting at Mooresville with the L. & M., and extending through Cloverdale on to Brazil have been sold, and that actual construction work will begin before many months. Surveyors are working this week on the line in this county and are making a few changes from the original survey, in order to avoid some steep grades. At Brazil, the line will connect with the electric line that runs through Greencastle, Brazil and on to Terre Haute.—Martinsville Republican.

THE INDIANA STATE CRANSE

Will Hold Its Annual Meeting at Winona Lake Next Week.

The Thirty-eighth session of the Indiana State Grange will be held at Winona Lake, December 8, 9 and 10, 1908. It is believed it will be the largest and best meeting of the Grange ever held in the state.

Measures of great moment, not only to the order, but to the farmers and the entire people of the country, will be considered and discussed. The president of the United States has appointed a commission to inquire into and investigate what changes in the tariff laws of the country should be made to promote the best interest of the people of the entire country. This commission is now holding daily hearings at the City of Washington, D. C., listening to the arguments of the attorneys and the representatives of the varied industrial interests of the country.

It has been claimed that the present and past tariff laws are, and have been, more favorable to manufacturers and other industrial interests than to agriculture. If it be true that agriculture in the past has been discriminated against, then farmers should see to it that the revised tariff laws which the incoming administration is pledged to have enacted, shall be just and fair to agriculture, and give to it equal benefits with the most favored industrial interests of the country. The importance of this matter must be apparent to every farmer. To whom can farmers look to have their interests conserved, unless it be to farmers themselves? The tariff commission has asked what farmers want. Shall we be silent, or shall we counsel with each other and ask in the revised tariff that equal benefits be accorded to agriculture with other industrial interests?

Fraternally,
AARON JONES,
Master of State Grange.

NEW EMBLEM FOR EAGLES

Large Specimen of the Great American Bird is Being Mounted by Indianapolis Taxidermist for Frederick Johns of Greencastle Who Will Give it to Eagles Lodge.

WAS KILLED NEAR GREENCASTLE

Otto von Tesmar, a taxidermist, with shop at 720 South Delaware Street, has just finished mounting a golden eagle that is pronounced a splendid specimen. Frederick Johns, of Greencastle, is having it mounted for presentation to the Lodge of Eagles of Greencastle. The eagle has a fine pair of wings, measuring seven feet and two inches from tip to tip. The wings are mounted in an uplifted position, as if the bird were preparing to sweep away from the base on which it is mounted. Its feathers are heavy and the talons seem large enough to clutch prey in an unflinching grasp. The eagle was killed with birdshot, the hunter having been out for quail when he came upon this fast-vanishing species of the lords of the air. The capture was made near Greencastle.—Indianapolis News.

ASH SALOON STILL CLOSED

Money Due County and City is Not Yet Forthcoming and the Doors Remain Locked Until Cash Appears

THE CITY IS PAID IN PART

The saloon of John Ash, closed yesterday afternoon by Prosecuting Attorney James P. Hughes, after the filing of an affidavit against the proprietor for keeping an unlawful place, is still shut. Ash has promised to raise all the money by Saturday, and the officials of the city and the county will wait till that time before anything further is done.

It appears that at the time the license was granted Ash gave County Treasurer Walls a check for the amount due the county. It subsequently developed that there was no money to meet the check, and it was protested leaving the county out, though a receipt for the cash had been issued. Ash, at the same time paid to City Treasurer Overstreet forty dollars in cash and received a receipt for the full amount of the license. These two receipts presented to the auditor secured the paper. The county is looking for $100 and the city for $210.

It is stated today that if the money is not forthcoming shortly the city will levy upon such of the furniture and fixtures as are not already subject to a lien.

One of the good features of the big comedy drama at the opera house tonight in the singing of the quartet, an extra feature with the show. It is said to be one of the best singing quartets before the public. New and popular songs are rendered, as well as the old favorites.

Getting an "Old Man."

"Speaking of new men," said the boss of the skyscraper builders, with a twinkle, "comical things happen even up here, the same as in a theater. Sometimes in rush seasons there ain't enough hands to go round, and we have to take 'em green as the hills. I had one once, a kid from Vermont, a whole of a kid, with bones like a horse and eyes awfully anxious to please—eyes that made you like him. He's one of the best men I've got now, but then he was green as God made him." The foreman stopped to chuckle.

"Go up to the eighteenth floor," I told him one day, "and bring down an old man." I was busy at the time, and when I saw the kid stare I said kind of sharp that if that old man wasn't here in five minutes the whole blamed building would probably go to smash. This was just my way of making him hustle, but he thought I meant it word for word. He went up on the run, and in a few minutes he came down with a spattering, clanking old feller held like a vice in his arms.

"He was the only old man on the floor," said the kid, and he wanted to stop and argue about it, but from what you said I knew what it meant, so I just grabbed him and came."

"You see," the foreman added kindly, "noting my puzzled expression, 'an old man happens to be the name of a tool we use.'—Everybody's Magazine.

Making Caricatures.

The way in which some artists can distort features without making them unrecognizable is certainly very remarkable. Thomas Nast possessed this faculty to an extraordinary degree, and he had a very peculiar way of adding new faces to his mental photograph gallery. When a fresh subject would arise in politics, for instance, he would invent some pretext to call upon him at his office or house and hold him in conversation as long as possible, studying his features. When he took his departure he would purposely leave his cane. Once outside, Nast would make a hasty pencil sketch on a card and would usually find that his memory was deficient as to some detail. He would then return, ostensibly for the cane, and another look at the victim would enable him to perfect his sketch. After that he had the man forever. When Joe Kiepler was alive he used to make frequent trips to Washington for the purpose of seeing statesmen whom he wanted to draw. He was very clever at catching likenesses and scarcely ever referred to a photograph.

A Wonderful Bird.

One day a wonderful bird tapped at the window of Mrs. Nansen's wife of the famous arctic explorer home at Christiania. Instantly the window was opened, and in another moment she covered the little messenger with kisses and caresses. The carrier pigeon had been away from the cottage thirty long months, but it had not forgotten the way home. It brought a note from Nansen, stating that all was going well with him and his expedition in the polar region. Nansen had fastened a message to the bird and turned it loose. The frail courier darted out into the blizzards air. It flew like an arrow over a thousand miles of frozen waste and then sped forward over an other thousand miles of ocean and plains and forests and one morning entered the window of the waiting mistress and delivered the message which she had been awaiting so anxiously.

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Thoughts from men of affairs upon questions of the day.

The County Option Law.

There is grave doubt as to the constitutionality of the county local option law, recently passed by the special session of the Indiana legislature.

The right to suspend the operation of a law, by popular vote, is contrary to the constitution of this state.

The law-making power is vested by the state constitution in the general assembly, and, therefore, the exercise, by any other body, of the power to make, sanction, suspend, or give effect to, laws is necessarily not in harmony with that constitution.

The submission of laws to the vote of the people in their primary capacity, is subversive of the representative system and inconsistent with the state constitution.

Any law that may be made effective in one community and ineffective in an adjoining or other community, may be deemed to be special or local legislation by the courts, and local and special legislation is in conflict with the constitution. So says the highest court in the state.

In March, 1853, the legislature of this state passed a license law that was designed to regulate the liquor traffic. The first, second and third sections of that law provided for taking a vote by townships, annually, at the April election, on the license question, and that, without the consent of a majority of the legal voters of the proper township "for license," none could issue. The remainder of the act provided for a bond and repealed all other laws on the subject of retailing spirituous liquors.

In Tippecanoe county a man named Maize was arrested under this law charged with selling liquor without a license. Maize admitted the charge and the supreme court, when the case reached that court on appeal, decided that the man's admissions were sufficient to authorize a conviction, if the law was constitutional. The trial court convicted Maize, but the case was appealed in order that the law might be tested as to its constitutionality. Some of the agreed facts were: The prosecuting attorney admitted that at the time of the sale of the liquor by Maize, the act of March 4, 1853, was not of uniform operation throughout the state because some townships voted license and others no license; that the township in which the liquor was sold voted no license, and that the act in question was in force, so far as publication could make it.

In making appeal, the attorneys discussed several points, the third and chief one being: "Is the act of March 4, 1853, or so much thereof as requires it to be submitted to a vote of the people of the several townships, constitutional?"

"It seems needless further to inquire whether the act in question is general and uniform in its operation. A law expressly providing for license in this township and no license in that, by name, and so on alternately throughout the state, would not, in its operation, essentially differ from this. Had the question been submitted to a vote of the state at large, the license feature, whether adopted or rejected, would have, at least, had the recommendation of uniformity. Besides, such an act, it is presumed, would not have had plausibility enough to mislead anyone into the belief that it was constitutional. But this act is a specious and accommodating refinement of local legislation—ingeniously comprehensive—annually presenting to the townships an aspect suited to the taste of each.

If this system of drafting bills with a double aspect, leaving it to the people which they will adopt, is to prevail, of what use is the constitutional provision requiring the yeas and nays on the final passage? If the object of this provision was to subject the action of the representative to the inspection of his constituents, it is thus completely evaded.

For the vote, whether ye or nay, means nothing, indicates nothing; neither adopts nor rejects any policy, except that it ingeniously shifts the responsibility of final action from the legislature to the people.

"If we regard the act of March, 1853, in force from its passage, as is claimed in argument, then we conceive it to be in conflict with sec. 26 of art. 1. That section reads: 'The operation of the laws shall never be suspended, except by authority of the general assembly.' An illustration of the exercise of this power occurs in chapter 1, Special and Local acts of 1852, entitled, 'an act to suspend certain acts therein named. That the operation of the act of March, 1853, was left to be suspended or otherwise, according to the vote of each township, is so evident as to need only to be stated. The township which is year votes 'license' and thus puts the law in operation, may next year vote 'no license,' and thus suspend its operation. Under the constitution, the legislature alone can suspend the operation of the laws. And this power is not distinguishable from any other legislative power. It cannot be delegated. The suspending act is itself a law, and must emanate from the law-making power—specifying the act suspended, and, perhaps, the period of suspension. An existing law is a rule of action, open to every citizen to comply with its requisitions. But in case of a negative vote, there is no law left to be complied with. As to that township, it has no effect or operation. It is suspended."

The court then ordered that so much of the law of March, 1853, as related to township votes be stricken out. It was held that the law was a complete license law without the voting feature.

Under the county local option law it is for the voters of a county to say whether or not that law shall be in operation or not. Beyond that, the county local option law supercedes—and, in effect, suspends—the Moore remonstrance law in counties voting "no license." In counties voting "license" the Moore remonstrance law remains operative. The application of the above quoted decision to the county option law situation is easily made. It presents an interesting question for lawyers.—Indianapolis Commercial.

Would Let Folks Know It.

Somebody sent this to the society editor and made affidavit that it really happened.

Here it is: They were out at an afternoon card party. A stout woman dropped a card to the floor. "Would you be so kind as to pick up that card for me?" she inquired of the little woman at her right.

"Certainly," said the accommodating woman at the right, picking up the card.

"You see," explained the stout woman apologetically, "I've got on a brand new fifty dollar corset, and I'm afraid I'll strain it if I lean over."

"Hum!" commented the other woman enviously. "If I had a fifty dollar corset I'd wear it on the outside. I really would."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Crazy.

How Congress Spring Was Named.

When John Taylor Gilman, a member of congress, visited the log houses which chiefly constituted Saratoga in its early history, he was accompanied one day on a hunting ramble by a young son of the woodsman with whom he boarded. When they returned to the cabin the boy enthusiastically shouted, "Oh, ma, we've found a new spring!"

"How found it?" he was asked.

Turning to the distinguished lawmaker, the little fellow admiringly exclaimed, "Why, the congress!"

And to this day the name has clung to one of the most celebrated of the springs which made the place a sanitary resort long before it became the seat of summer fashion.

Marked for Death.

"Three years ago I was marked for death. A grave yard enough was tearing my lungs to pieces. Doctors failed to help me, and hope had fled, when my husband got Dr. King's New Discovery," says Mrs. A. The Farmer's Wife

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet, and does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood. If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

MOSS WILL DISTRIBUTE PIE

Fifth District Congressman Will Have the Apportioning of the Census Officers.

It may be that there will be some "pie" for Ralph W. Moss, congressman-elect from the Fifth district, to distribute after all.

If the census bill as drawn by Congressman Crumpacker is passed, the census will be taken by Democratic appointees in eleven of the thirteen congressional districts in Indiana. The triumph of Mr. Moss over Mr. Maxwell in the late election will put the Clay County man in a position to parcel out the census jobs in the seven counties of the district, providing of course, the Crumpacker bill passes.

It would, of course, give Mr. Moss the privilege of naming a district superintendent of census at a good salary and of designating the enumerators for the district, of whom there would be a hundred or more.

The clerical place at Washington will pay an average of $100 per month and transfer to the permanent civil service is possible at the end of the one to three years' period of service in connection with the census of 1910. The bureau will be reorganized for the census of 1910 about July 1 of next year.

The local enumerators and the district superintendent are paid on a per capita basis. The compensation is unusually good, as the allowance is liberal.

Editor Herald: I notice that the Postmaster-General discloses the fact that there is a deficit in his department of $16,910,278.99. One of the reasons given by him for this deficit is—the panic—business depressions—and the financial flurry—undoubtedly contributed in making making this deficit the largest in the history of the department. Jim Watson and other Republican speakers of much larger caliber, than the candidate for Governor, did not seem to know of any panic in this country during the past year. We wonder if the editor of the Banner has discovered any panic yet?

A REPUBLICAN Who voted for Marshall.

The finest live motion pictures you have ever seen are given at the opera house motion picture show, while the illustrated songs are far ahead of all others. Tonight the house will be occupied by the "Cry Baby" Company. On Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the picture show will begin at which time there will be given a matinee. Saturday night at 7 o'clock the regular picture show will begin, and during the show there will be given away four handsome pictures, these pictures are now on exhibition in the show window of Hanna's Furniture Store. They would be fine Christmas presents and you may get one or all of them for nothing. They are worth going after.

His Work.

"Madam," whined the sad eyed unemployed who had come forlornly to the kitchen door, "a good, hearty meal, madam, is all I crave. It would help me tremendously in my work." "And what is your work?" demanded the kindly housewife. "Lookin' for work, madam," politely replied the unemployed. "And suppose I were to give you a job?" inquired the housewife. "I couldn't take it, madam," replied the unemployed, with a pathetic smile. "It would interfere with my work."—Exchange.

"He's quite a classical scholar, isn't he?" "Well, he's backward in reading Hebrew." "You don't say? I thought he was particularly good at that." "So he is, but that's the way you have to read Hebrew."—Exchange.

VOLCANOES.

They Are Not Burning Mountains as We Understand That Term.

"What are volcanoes?" Nine out of every ten persons would immediately have an answer of some sort to the question above, for have they not a lively remembrance of having learned in their schoolbooks that "a volcano is a burning mountain, from the summit of which are sent out smoke and flames?" This popular fancy has been exploded by scientists, whose work is to explode popular fancies.

In the first place, volcanoes are not necessarily mountains. In reality they are just the reverse—that is, holes in the earth's crust. Out of these are thrown the materials which, accumulating, form the heaps which we popularly call mountains.

These are, then, the result and not the cause of the action. Neither are they "burning," as we understand the term. There is no combustion nor any action we might reasonably call "burning."

The action need not necessarily take place at the summit, for eruptions are just as frequent at the sides or even at the base. The so-called "smoke" is nothing more or less than the clouds of condensing steam which are formed on every occasion when an eruption occurs.

Lastly, the "flames," so called, are merely the reflection of the mass of molten rock and material inside the crater on the clouds of steam above, thus appearing as a glowing light. The friction, too, set up by the motion of the materials causes electricity, and hence the lightning discharges which add to the illuminating effect.—Pearson's Magazine.

VOTED WITHOUT BALLOTS.

An Election Day at Charlottesville, Va., in 1804.

At Charlottesville, Va., the seat of Albemarle county, according to Miss Mary Johnston's chronicle of "Lewis and Clark," they were voting for a member of the house of delegates. It was the fourth Wednesday in April. The year was 1804.

"Under the locust trees to the right of the open gate were placed long tables and on them three mighty punch bowls, flanked by drinking cups and guarded by house servants of venerable appearance and stately manners. Here good Federalists refreshed themselves. To the left of the gate, upon the trampled grass beneath a mulberry, appeared other punch bowls and in addition a barrel of whisky ready broached for all good Democrat-Republicans. The sunny street was filled with horses, vehicles and servants; the broad path between the trees, the turf on either hand and the courthouse steps were crowded with riotous voters. All ranks of society, all ages, occupations and opinions, met in the general weather beneath the trees, where sang every bird of spring."

Within the courthouse the sheriff presided. Conspicuous sat the two candidates. There were no ballots, but each voter made known his choice by living voice.

"I vote, sir," cried the colonel, "for Mr. Ludwell Cary, for a gentleman and a patriot, sir, and may the old county never be represented but by such!"

The Money Germ.

The Baltimore Sun comes out with a warning that probably few will heed. It says, "Don't let the money germs bite you," and adds that a man who has taken the trouble to count 'em says that 124,000 bacteria roost comfortably on each one dollar bill after the currency has been circulating freely for a year or so. So if you have $50 in your pocket you are probably carrying around about 6,200,000 germs. "Yet," says the Sun, "there are men brave enough to face this terrible risk just for the sake of having a roll of greenbacks. It simply shows what dangers man will undergo for money. Most of us, however, are not in serious danger."

Garibaldi's Simplicity of Character.

An instance of Garibaldi's modesty and simplicity of character is afforded by the following letter, written to his wife at Caprera the day after the battle of Dignola:

Dear Francesca—Yesterday the Italian volunteers fought the whole day against the Prussians, the best soldiers in the world, and won. The weather here is very cold, and it is snowing. I dare say it will be the same in the Mediterranean. Take care of the cows and see that the calves do not suffer from the cold. Tell Carlo to sow the beans at the Pole and tell the children, Clelia and Manlio, that when I passed Marselles I saw some beautiful toys, which on my return I shall get for them.

Ingenious Ponies.

A rather curious habit has been developed by Mexican ponies in connection with the cactus thorns. When these creatures are thirsty it is said that before attempting to put their mouths to the prickly plant they will first of all stand and kick at the cactus with their heels. By this means the thorns are broken and the leathery skin bruised, and so the ponies can drink their fill of the cool juice without injury.—Strand Magazine.

They Were Not Encouraged.

"I don't see why that young man doesn't propose." "I think, pa, that the chances of his doing it would be fully as good if you wouldn't leave your boxing gloves around where he can see them."—Bohemian Magazine.

Of course everybody likes and respects self made men. It is a great deal better to be made in that way than to be made at all.—O. W. Holmes.

A Twenty-four Hour Romance.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

It is only the solemn truth to write that Miss Sarah Bingham was thirty-seven years old and unmarried and that she had romance in her soul, but it would be ungracious to add that she was in the matrimonial market and had been ever since she arrived at the age of twenty. She had simply waited. She could afford to wait and persisted in giving her age as twenty-five right along and making herself believe that time was standing still on her account.

Miss Sarah was feeling in this serene and optimistic mood when she was invited by friends to be their guest at a summer hotel on the banks of a lake. They didn't consult her romance as much as their own interest. They had two children and a dog, and they figured on making the old maid work for her board and lodgings. She fell into the trap, but not to her detriment. One of the male guests of the hotel, who might not have noticed her in any other walk, saw her as nurse and dog guardian and made advances. This guest was darkly supposed to be an actor—an actor who played great parts and made a great success of his job, but who was there inecog, and wished to remain so. The other guests were respecting this wish, but following him about with bated breath.

Actors sometimes get queer notions into their heads, and Mr. Melnotte got one into his. It was that Miss Sarah would make the greatest Juliet he ever saw on the stage. She had the form, the voice, the eyes, the nose, the chin and the toes. All that was lacking were cash and a manager and the removal of just one tiny doubt—a doubt no larger than the head of a brass pin. Did she have the necessary romance? If she did, then all was well; if she didn't, then alas! It has been stated that Miss Sarah did have romance and doted on it, but the next thing was to prove it to the actor.

She took two days to cogitate and then went ahead. The hotel was surrounded by woods on three sides. One morning Miss Sarah left the whimpering dog and the howling children behind and started for the green wood and was soon lost to sight. She would be missed, searched for, found and be talked of as romantic.

Miss Sarah was missed. The idea was that she had been drowned. More than half the guests turned out to drag the bottom of the lake. The actor was not one of them. Coincident with the alarm he had been told by a fat woman that Miss Sarah hadn't a dollar to her name. One woman asserted her belief that the missing female had eloped with a tin peddler that had been seen driving past the hotel at an early morning hour, and in her excitement another woman said that any young lady that would leave a dog and two children to weep and wail by themselves should be severely dealt with on her return, dead or alive. These opinions were expressed to the actor for the purpose of drawing him out, but he refused to be drawn. He had just sat down to a mint julep with two straws in it, and why worry?

Miss Sarah had entered the wood with her heart aflame with romance. She hustled her way along for half a mile and then halted for the actor to arrive at the head of a rescuing party. He didn't arrive. She waited for an hour and then started to walk back. Her feelings were hurt, and she lost the points of the compass and became lost for good. When she discovered this fact she called and screamed, but only the chipmunks and the woodpeckers answered. She ran this way and stumbled over roots. She ran that way and went splashing into a creek. There was romance in the greenwood, but it was farther on. All that long, long day Miss Sarah was lost in the depths.

It was almost sundown when her good genius finally guided her to a clearing with a log cabin in the midst of it. Seated at the door of the cabin was a middle aged man in homespun. He rose up and addressed her as "marm" and wanted to know all about it. When he had been told he declared that it was the romanticist thing he had ever heard of. In her wanderings she had walked seven miles. She had escaped bears and "Injuns" and wildcats, and if she wasn't what they called a heroine then he didn't know a turnip from a "tater bug."

Miss Sarah was tired, and she rested. She was hungry, and he fed her on pudding and milk. She wanted to get back to the hotel and enjoy her triumph, and he yoked up his oxen to the lumber wagon and drove her there through the moonlight. The guests saw her coming and got ready to receive her. There was icy frigidity. There was a general attitude of doubt and suspicion. There were sneers at romance. When the humiliated and embarrassed maiden looked at the actor in an appealing way he turned his head aside and made it very plain that she would never prance around behind the footlights with his convivance. The farmer had waited for the heroines, and he saw that there were none coming to her. He saw her crushed instead, and he stepped forward and touched her on the arm and said:

"Say, gal, they don't 'pear to appreciate heroines here. Come and be my heroine. I'll drive over ag'in tomorrow for your answer."

And he did, and he got it, and then the guests were all jealous because a romantic young lady had struck a good thing instead of drowning herself in the lake or starving to death in the wood.
